Want to Advance Your Career through Leadership?

Established supervisors interested in improving their skills or new supervisors wishing to advance their careers will find the Texas A&M AgriLife Emerging Leaders Conference to be a valuable tool in accomplishing those goals. In addition, information presented through the conference can help participants accelerate their effectiveness as leaders.

This dynamic two-day conference will feature presentations by a nationally recognized speaker and several well-known presenters within The Texas A&M University System as well as workshops and activities related to supervisory skills, responsibilities, and roles.

Attendance at the conference is free, but space is limited to 70 participants, so applications are required. Supervisors who wish to be leaders who inspire and motivate others are invited to apply today.
